

Academic writing in radiology — results of a local survey

Towards the end of last year a survey was conducted of contributions by local authors in the peer-reviewed literature. A big thanks goes to all of you who answered this call. There are undoubtedly a number of other authors in South Africa who have not listed their publications here but this survey was never intended to present an exhaustive list of all known writings by South African radiologists. It was thought that the survey would not amount to much but we were somewhat surprised by the response we had. Printed here is a list of contributions by those local authors who replied to the survey. We have limited the list to those publications in the local and international peer-reviewed journals during the last 5 years. Mainly to preserve the sanity of the editor we have not included the many contributions to textbooks or articles printed in the SAJR. We have also not included abstracts from international congress or poster presentations. But from this list one can take heart that South African radiologists are continuing to make their mark throughout the world. This survey was intended to be a 'one-off' but the SAJR could continue to publish abstracts of future articles by local authors as a regular feature so that readers can remain aware of these ongoing contributions. Your opinions on this could be addressed to the editor of the SAJR or placed on the RSSA website discussion forum.
